Each record commits cryptographically to the one before it. Altering or removing any earlier record changes its hash, which was an input to this one, breaking every record that follows.

This document is a rendering of a sealed record, not the record itself. Its accuracy can be confirmed by checking the hash above against the source system.

Retained in line with the firm's file retention policy. Source of introduction is recorded for client due diligence under MLR 2017.
